Pastor KrisAnne's Korner

Easter Sunday is now behind us, but I hope you are still living into the truth that you are a new creation, filled with the resurrection power of Jesus. I hope all the signs of new life in community parks, yards and neighborhood gardens; remind you of new possibilities and new beginnings.

Two years ago, as I was cleaning out one of our flower gardens, preparing for the new growth that would soon be emerging, I was startled to find a small hole. And then as I cleared away old sticks and leaves and explored a bit more, I noticed soft fur clumped up around the hole. I wondered what had happened. Had some small animal been killed and this was all that was left? As I cleared away a bit more, here is what I found:

Precious little ears and legs, tiny feet and small heads. All of a sudden I realized... these were baby bunnies! I quickly covered them back up with the fur and the leaves, hoping mama would come back and still care for them even though I had disturbed their nest. I checked on them every day for the next week. I watched them get bigger and bigger, almost too big for their little nest. And then one day, they were gone. I didn't see any signs of a struggle, so I chose to believe they simply got old enough to jump away and simply live their lives.

New life. It's exciting. It's tender. It often starts small and fragile. It needs protection and nurturing. It calls for our attention and care. What new life is God calling forth in you? In our congregation? How can we nurture it, protect it, pay attention to it, claim it and care for it? Is it a new purpose? A new gift for the good of the church and community? A new risk to take for the Kingdom? A new ministry or project? I invite you to pray over those questions this Easter season. Listen for God. I'm happy to talk with you and pray with you about what you may be hearing. God may be doing a new thing - let's not miss it!
